

New Testament Quotations of or Allusions to the Old Testament

The following is a list of the passages and phrases which are marked by uncial type in the text as taken from the Old Testament. . . , together with references to the places from which they are derived. Many of the quotations are composite, being formed from two or more definite passages, or from one passage modified by the introduction of a phrase found in one or more other definite passages.

Sometimes also it is difficult to tell from which of several similar passages a phrase was taken, if indeed it was taken from one more than another. In all these cases we have given a plurality of illustration; and have therefore passed over such passages of the Old Testament as neither had an equal claim to notice with the passages actually referred to, nor contributed any supplementary and otherwise unrepresented element to the language of the quotations in the New Testament. But in all these points, no less than in the selection of passages and words for marking by uncial type, it has not been found possible to draw and maintain a clear line of distinction.

The numeration of chapters and verses is that of the ordinary English editions. It has not seemed worthwhile to add the numeration current in Hebrew editions.... The same principle has been followed as to the numeration used in editions of the LXX [Septuagint].... Where a quotation, or a substantive element of a quotation, agrees with the Masoretic text but not with the LXX as represented by any of its better documents, we have added 'Heb.' or 'Chald.' [updated to 'Aram.'] to the numerals, and in the converse case 'LXX.' But we have seldom attempted to mark the limitation in mixed cases (as Mt. 24:7), or in cases where the difference of texts amounts to no more than slight references. On the other hand we have abstained from multiplying references for the purposes of modification of the one by the other.

We are much indebted to Dr. Moulton for a careful and thorough revision of the list. It was unfortunately too late to make use of his suggestions in the text itself: but we have thought it best to incorporate at once with the list such additions as we should now for any reason desire to make.

Note by Modern Editor: To make this as useful as possible, I have arranged the index in both Old Testament canonical order and New Testament canonical order, supplementing Westcott and Hort's list with the list of direct quotations from the NIV New Testament. These are identified with bold type in the list by NT canonical order. The rest in the New Testament list, in regular type, are allusions.
